

Presenter: Rudolph NG

Current Affiliation & Position

University of Cambridge & University of Portsmouth
Assistant Professor

Research Expertise

History of Migration, Human Rights,
Humanitarianism, Modern China, Post-Colonial
Latin America

Email

Rn339@cam.ac.uk

Self-introduction

Rudolph Ng is Lecturer (Assistant Professor) in Global History at the University of Portsmouth, UK. His research interests revolve around global migration in the nineteenth century and its relations to concepts of humanitarianism and labor rights. Currently, he is preparing a book manuscript on the history of Chinese migration to Cuba, Peru, and Chile during the nineteenth century, when the Chinese laborers essentially replaced the dwindling population of African slaves post-abolitionist movement.