Self-introduction

Mgr. Bc. Magdaléna Masláková, M.A. (b. 1991) graduated from the Study of Religions, master degree obtained in 2015, and the Cultural Studies of China, bachelor degree obtained in 2017, at the Masaryk University in Brno. She continued her studies at Zhejiang University and obtained the master degree of Master of China Studies in 2019.

In the autumn of 2015, she started the PhD studies with the aim of researching the Presbyterian Church in Taiwan and its missionary and political struggles. At that time, she had already visited Taiwan twice before, and was familiar with Taiwanese archives in Europe. However, in 2016 and 2017-2018, she had a chance to travel to Hangzhou in the PRC for exchange studies, and have stayed there for one and half years in total. While being in China, she have decided to conduct field research focusing on the Chinese Catholic Patriotic Association.

She is currently in her final year of her PhD studies at the department of Study of Religions at Masaryk University. And since 2018, she is a staff member at the Seminar of China Studies at the same university. In her research, she is dedicated to the study of Christianity in the Chinese context.
